

Requirements for Certification (CADC):

An applicant for certification shall submit evidence of the following to the Committee:

1. A completed application form, which contains information concerning the applicant's educational and experiential background.
2. A bachelor's degree, associate's degree, high school diploma or a certificate of high school equivalency.
3. Completion of 270 hours of domain-specific core training approved by the APCBNJ or a regionally accredited college or university which shall be related to the knowledge and skill associated with the functions of an alcohol and drug counselor. (See page 15 of the LCADC/CADC application).
4. 3,000 hours of related experience (one year of full-time work = 1,500 hours). Experiential hours may go back only 5 years.
5. 300 of these hours must be supervised practical training (see pages 9-10 of the application). Supervised practical training must be obtained within three years immediately preceding the submission of the application and shall be distributed among all 12 core functions: screening, intake, orientation, assessment, treatment planning, counseling – individual, group, and family, case management, crisis intervention, client education, referral, consultation, and recordkeeping.
6. A supervisor evaluation form must be submitted on your behalf (see pages 11-13 of the application). If you received your experience or supervised practical training at more than one location, obtain a supervisor evaluation from each location where you worked.
7. Attendance at 30 alcohol and drug self-help meetings. The minimum number of meetings required are 5 AA, 5 Alanon, 5 NA, and any other 15 self-help groups. (See page 14 of the application.)
8. Successful completion of a written exam developed and prepared by the ICRC, or its affiliate. In order to sit for the examination, approval of your application must be granted by the Alcohol and Drug Counselor Committee.

Coursework:

It is possible that some academic coursework at the bachelor's or master's level may count toward certification if you have received your education in counseling or a closely-related field from a pre-approved regionally-accredited college or university. If the college/university has not been pre-approved to provide the 270 domain-specific core training, you must submit your transcript and course descriptions to the APCBNJ. (APCBNJ is authorized to translate the academic training into the equivalent core-training hours.) ABCPNJ will conduct an educational review of your coursework and notify you of any deficient core-training hours that are required and/or issue a transcript verifying the 270-hour equivalent.
